

MEDICAL CAREER CHOICES

What you think, how you make decisions, what sort of doctor you want to be, how you want to live your life is important to us. It is important for medical educators and medical workforce planners to better understand how we train tomorrow's doctors and build a sustainable workforce.

You have the opportunity along with your national colleagues to become a member of a large cohort study to help us address the workforce issues above.

We hope to reach Australian medical students from all universities particularly in first and final year and invite you to participate in this longitudinal study. The Schools shown have agreed to participate and soon we will be in direct contact with you.

I hope we get a chance to hear from you.

MEDICAL CAREER CHOICES

Career Choices for Australian Medical Students is a cohort study that will examine what and how medical students and new graduates make career plans and choices.

It is funded by the Australian Research Council and is linked to the Medical Students Outcomes Database project that many of you may have participated in already.

It is being run out of Griffith University by a team of researchers that includes doctors and other healthcare clinicians.

Talk and learn and grow with us as we understand more about how tomorrow's doctors will work and live.
